

I would like to nominate the Tantramar Marsh as one of the Seven Wonders of Sackville.

The Tantramar Marsh is an integral part of the landscape, history, and economic development of the Sackville region, and one of the main reasons the area was settled in the first place. At one time the hay from the salt marshes was highly prized and shipped all along the eastern seaboard of North America and beyond.

The open spaces and waters provide sanctuary for migrating birds. The quiet peacefulness that can be found there has probably given many an opportunity for solitary reflection and contemplation. The beauty of the marshes have inspired many artists to write songs and poetry, create paintings or photographs to capture the essence of the area.

Thanks for your consideration.

Troy Johnstone

